

Zero City

Visiting a museum in Stockholm

In the morning, we took the train to go to the Zero-City museum.

At first, we got an introduction with headphones, and we got a paper with a few questions handed. After that, we walked through the great hall with many interactive stations. We were all really impressed by the many things to look at, for example the air plain which was held in the air by strings. We have learned more about the ecological transport over water and that insects are a great alternative for proteins.

After lunchtime, we had time to explore the museum by ourselves. Especially the part of the hall with a tunnel was very popular and funny, because sometimes it was a bit scary.

In the afternoon, we walked from the museum to the city. While the walk, we had to talk to people from another country which was very funny. It was a nice way to get to know each other better. We walked through Stockholm and saw some impressive monuments.

On 3 p.m., we had free time and have done different things in Stockholm, for example exploring the town and mall.
